Speaking about faith doctors brings to our mind a little story we once heard of a man, who having suffered death with neuralgia and having tried everything and everybody, but to no avail, finally con-suited a faith doctor. The doctor told him to sit down opposite him, and after clasping their hands began to look into each others eyes for five minutes, after the expiration of that time the doctor asked his patient "how he felt," whereupon he answered with a very red face that he "felt like a damn fool." There isn't much in this story, and no possible offense is meant to any one. But there is a moral in it. See!
